

I think the the "Do No Call List" should stay the way it is and not allow it to be extended to solicitors who have contacted customers in the past 18 months. If customers who have used there services want them, the customer should contact them!